`www.themeforphotography.com` A Photoshop Action is a piece of code that knows how to perform a task. Normally, you would just write the code by hand, but the Photoshop

Action Editor (see Action menu) makes it easy to create an Action without having to write your own code. Photoshop Actions are not like the robot species in _The Jetsons_. Unlike the Jetsons' robot, an Action doesn't copy or behave like you, but it does make a part of Photoshop do a task automatically.

## Getting Photographers Ready Before you start your day with Photoshop, here are a few important points to consider:

- * **Be familiar with your camera's controls and settings**.

Many advanced Photoshop users take the time to understand the controls and settings on their camera, to get the best quality images from their DSLR. * **Create and save duplicate backups of your files**.

The computer monitor is the most important piece of equipment in the photographic workflow. If your computer is afflicted with a problem that makes your monitor go out, you may lose work you have been working on. You can save a copy of your image in the background to your hard drive—and duplicate the version you are working on to the same location as the background. If you lose the original, you can always restore from the duplicate. Back up all the images on your camera's memory card. This means that if you lose your memory card, you will lose all the work you have done. *

**Keep your image files organized**. You should have some way to refer to your image files. You may want to think about naming your folders some type of naming convention, like `_First Trip to Disney Land_` or `_Paul's Assignment_`, if you are working with a large number of images. You may want to keep them in a folder on your computer's hard drive, on an external drive, or even on a flash drive for easy access and backup. You also need to make sure that you save the files on separate media. It doesn't matter if you store them on separate drives on the same computer or on Elucidation of an Aggravation Effect on Aluminum Toxicity in Electrolyte-Containing Saturated Salt Solutions. Saturated salt solutions are ubiquitous in nature and important in a broad range of industrial applications, including the production of aluminum electrolyte solutions. The presence of an electrolyte makes it possible to understand the basic processes in the electrolytic production of aluminum. In recent years, the toxicity of aluminum in electrolyte-containing salt solutions has become a major issue. Here, using a simple electrolysis system, it was shown for the first time that the toxicity of aluminum in NaCl solutions was actually enhanced by the presence of aluminum hydroxide, which is an important substance that is formed by the electrochemical reduction of hydroxide in the aluminum electrolyte solution. The toxicity of aluminum was also found to be enhanced by dissolved organic matter in saturated salt solutions, which was confirmed by using a Thiobacillus ferrooxidans bioassay. The relation between the release of aluminum ions and the reactive oxygen species generated by the adsorption of dissolved organic matter on aluminum surfaces was suggested to be the key mechanism causing the aggravation of the toxicity of aluminum. Steve Selene -- the self-described "brink of glory" poker player known for winning a record $8.67 million during a 73-day High Stakes Poker (HSP) tournament at the Aria in Las Vegas -- has died of a heart attack.
